Historical Background

Ten days have passed since the end of the battle at El Alamein, which brought a dramatic exchange of roles in North Africa. Rommel's troops have retreated to the Libyan city of El Agheila in what seems to be a long, hard-fought withdrawal.

Objectives

Captain Gregor McRae, from the Royal Air Force, has been hit while in a reconnaissance flight over German positions, and taken as a prisoner near the airfield of El Agheila.

You'll infiltrate the camp and rescue him.

Tactical Advice

Well, officer. This will be your starting point. You will recover McRae, and destroy the bomb store to the south of the base. Should you consider useful to capture a tank... take care. Right now, this is the only unoccupied one. To get away, you'll take a Junkers 52 in the nearby airfield. McRae can pilot it. Ah... If you find time to wreck some of those Stukas, you'll make me very happy. Dismissed.

Trivia

- The mission is named after the Greek mythology figure Icarus.
- The Pilot is exclusive in this mission.
- This is the only mission in Commandos: Behind Enemy Lines to feature a vacant and drivable Panzer IV tank.
- This is the first mission in Commandos: Behind Enemy Lines to feature a fixed-wing aircraft as an in-game object.
